As required quarterly by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), this Issues and Program List will identify the programs aired over WETD 90.7 FM, State University of New York, Alfred, NY 14802 over the preceding quarter. In order to fulfill part 73.3527 of Title 47 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) regarding non-commercial, educational radio stations, WETD 90.7 FM is required by the Federal Communication Commission (FCC) to submit a Quarterly List reflecting the "licensee's most significant programming treatment of community issues". 1/1/2017	25:00	1364	It's finally over! After two years of non-stop election coverage we can finally take a little break from all the talk about politics and scandals and...whatever. That makes this a perfect time to revisit a book about politics in the classroom. We've been hearing about the decline of civics education for years...and one issue keeps arising: is it possible to keep politics out of civics? For that matter, is keeping politics out of the classroom a good idea at all?
1/15/2017	25:00	1372	Let's start the New Year off with a slogan: education needs communication. Not my best work, but the point is learning to communicate and listen is something many of us need help with.  Today on the Best of Our Knowledge, we'll hear from the author of a journal article of effective forms of communication.
1/29/2017	25:00	1374	So we're going to start out close to home this week. New York Governor Andrew Cuomo recently toured the state promoting his legislative plans for the New Year. He spent a lot of that time talking about education...and leaders around the state noticed. Today on the Best of Our Knowledge, we'll hear reaction to education policy changes in the Empire State. Then it's off to the UK to hear how scientists are trying to repair defects in DNA with gene splicing...and we'll spend an Academic Minute learning fertility from a fruit fly.
2/5/2017	25:00	1375	We all have a picture in our head about what the perfect learning environment looks and sounds like. Secluded, comfortable, quiet. Yeah, that's pretty much all wrong. Today on the Best Of Our Knowledge, we'll talk to the author of the book How We Learn...and learn how most of us get it all wrong. We'll also hear from a student in the northeast who is always being asked "where are you from?"...and we'll spend an Academic Minute mourning the loss if the roadside motel.
2/26/2017	25:00	1378	The first time new Secretary of Education Betsy DeVos tried to visit a school her first week on the job, she was blocked by protesters. It was an unsettling debut for one of the most controversial cabinet appointments, ever, from nomination to confirmation. Today on the Best of Our Knowledge, we'll hear from Secretary DeVos, as she addressed members of the department of Education her first day on the job. We'll also hear how companies who specialize in big data are making money off your medical records...and spend an Academic Minute getting thirsty at bedtime.

3/5/2017	25:00	1379	When we talk about learning a second language in school we're usually talking about Spanish or French or Mandarin. But one of the most important languages a student can learn today is computer code, and it seems not many girls are signing up. Today on the Best of Our Knowledge, we'll hear from the founder of the group Girls Who Code. We'll also talk to Henry Winkler about his diagnosis of dyslexia and the books he writes for kids growing up with the same issues...and spend an Academic Minute with political satire in a post truth world.
3/12/2017	25:00	1380	A new government survey of parents suggests that 1 in 45 children, ages 3 through 17, have been diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder. This is notably higher than the official government estimate of 1 in 68 American children with autism, by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. And even though there has been seemingly endless debate about what causes autism, for a parent whose child has the condition, all they care about is helping that child live a full, happy life.

1/15/2017	53:00	1444	This week on "A Way with Words": The language of political speech. Politicians have to repeat themselves so often that they naturally develop a repertoire of stock phrases to fall back on. But is there any special meaning to subtler locutions, such as beginning a sentence with the words "Now, look..."? Also, a peculiar twist in Southern speech may leave outsiders scratching their heads: In parts of the South "I wouldn't care to" actually means "I would indeed like to." Finally, how the word "nerd" went from a dismissive term to a badge of honor. Also, dog in the manger, crumb crushers, hairy panic, pink slips, make a branch, and horning hour.

1/29/2017	53:00	1445	You may have heard the advice that to build your vocabulary you should read, read, and then read some more--and make sure to include a wide variety of publications. Also, when new words are added to a dictionary, do others get removed to make room? Plus, words of encouragement, words of exasperation, and a polite Japanese way to say goodbye when a co-worker leaves at the end of the day. Also, you bet your boots, the worm has turned, raise hell and put a chunk under it, bread and butter, on tomorrow, a love letter to libraries and an apology to marmots.

1/29/2017	29:00	03-17	Mirrors of Privilege is a remarkable and engaging film that explores stories from white men and women about their journeys in overcoming issues of unconscious bias and entitlement. From Shakti Butler, director of Cracking the Codes: The System of Inequity and The Way Home: Women Talk About Race in America, Mirrors of Privilege is a must-see for all people who are interested in justice, spiritual growth and community making. This film advances the argument that with transformative learning, a dialogue for learning, changing, healing, and undoing race-based oppression can begin. It features the experiences and stories of White women and men who are social justice advocates. They have worked to gain insight into what it means, as White people, to challenge notions of race, racism, culture and White identity development in the United States. 			these issues and show how these responses can be replaced with solid commitments towards racial justice. Film Participants include: Elizabeth Denevi, Jeb Middlebrook, Mary Riordan, Rick Broniec, Marguerite Parks, Peggy McIntosh, Janelle Peterson, Joe Fahey, Gillian Burlingham, Jennifer Juhler, Gary Howard, Tim Wise, Andrea Rabinowitz, Francie Kendall, Dianne Finnerty, Krista Alderson, Kim Irwin ; actors, Aisha Bilal, Judy Blumenfeld, Kumi Oya, Andrew Weed ; dancer, Amara Tabor-Smith.

3/5/2017	29:00	08-17	This year is the 75th anniversary of we now call Japanese Internment. And every year since 1942, Japanese Americans have tried to get the rest of us to remember what happened. To notice the scar that mass incarceration left, not just on the Japanese community, but on all of us. We found ourselves at similar crossroads in 2001 when the Bush Administration used the chaos of 9/11 to push through drastic changes, including the creation of a Muslim registry called NSEERS, the National Security Entry Exit Registration System. But, people fought it. And won. Today, as President Trump moves to ban Muslims from entering the U.S. and threatens to build another registry we are

			faced with similar choices. So, what can we learn from our history? And how do we fight back?
